

Every Two Minutes

Physicians tell us that all the blood in a healthy human body passes through the heart once in every two minutes. If this action becomes irregular the whole body suffers. Poor health follows poor blood; Scott's Emulsion makes the blood pure. One reason why is such a great aid is because it passes so quickly into the blood. It is partly digested before it enters the stomach; a double advantage in this. Less work for the stomach; quicker and more direct benefits. To get the greatest amount of good with the least possible effort is the desire of everyone in poor health. Scott's Emulsion does just that. A change for the better takes place even before you expect it.

We will send you a sample free. Be sure that this picture in the form of a label is on the wrapper of every bottle of Emulsion you buy. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, 409 Pearl St., N. Y. 30 cents and $1.00 All druggists

Survey of New Alton Railway.

Higginsville Jeffersonian:

It is practically certain that the Chicago & Alton will build a new track through the north side of the city. C. Older, chief engineer of the road, and a force of assistants were here the first of the week making a survey through the county. The survey is just north of the wagon road between this city and the Confederate Home or about half way to the home. This will of course necessitate another depot. It is understood that the new road will be used for all heavy freight and heavy passenger trains.

The new road will leave the main line at Norton, seven miles this side of Slater and tap the road again about Odessa, a distance of 50 miles. This is made necessary to avoid the heavy grades on the main line.

This new enterprise together with the electric line soon to begin building, so stated, will make things pretty lively in this town for the next year or two.

Mines Running Again.

Waterbury Watchman:

Owing to difference between the miners and operators over the loading of the cars the Big Six mine has been closed since February 24. A settlement could not be reached until Thursday, when George Caldwell, District President of the Mine Workers' Union, and Bennett Brown, of the Operators Board of Commissioners arrived and shortly settled the matter in a manner satisfactory to all.

John W. Wagner, aged 76 years, died at his home in Odessa, at 11 o'clock Saturday night, February 25, 1905, after an illness of two weeks.

INDIGESTION'S RECORD

"The best remedy I can prescribe for your indigestion, madam, is Green's August Flower. I know of several other physicians who prescribe it regularly."

Indigestion is making an awful record as a cause of sudden deaths. It is beating heart-failure in its ghastly harvest.

You read in the papers daily of apparently healthy and even robust men being suddenly attacked with acute indigestion after enjoying a hearty meal, and of their dying in many cases before a physician could be called in.

This should be a warning to you who suffer with regular or periodical attacks of indigestion. If these unfortunate victims of acute indigestion had taken a small dose of Green's August Flower before or after their meals they would not have fallen a prey to such sudden seizures.

August Flower prevents indigestion by creating good digestion. It also regulates the liver, purifies the blood and tones up the entire system in a natural way. Two sizes, 25c and 75c. All druggists.

I was all run down from nervousness and overwork and had to resign my position and take a rest. I found that I was not gaining my strength and health as fast as I could wish, and as your Wine of Cardui was recommended as such a good medicine for the ills of our sex, I bought a bottle and began using it. I was satisfied with the results from the use of the first bottle, and took three more and then found I was restored to good health and strength and able to take up my work with renewed vigor. I consider it a fine tonic and excellent for worn-out, nervous condition, and am pleased to endorse it.

WINE OF CARDUI

George W. Cable and the Home Culture Clubs.

Lyman P. Powell in the March Booklovers Magazine.

In his study of social and industrial problems, Mr. Geo. W. Cable constantly realized that the real obstacle to the progress of democracy—to which for good or ill, we are committed—is class distinction. To break this down, Mr. Cable proposed to call the home into immediate requisition. He said repeatedly: "The Private Home is the Public Home." He would make the home the beginning and the end of his philosophy of popular education.

Observing that the average man is at his best in the normal home because there he is best known, Mr. Cable proposed to energize the home, to develop in it the home-spirit to its highest and its best, to group contiguous homes together by a common interest in higher and in better things, and in this way to sweeten and to purify the atmosphere of each community until all class distinctions in it should die of sheer anemia.

In the autumn of 1887 he brought a few choice friends together and submitted for discussion a scheme embodying his ideas. He suggested the organization of a Home-Culture club in every home that would consent, the club to consist of the members of the family and of such neighbors that would come to a weekly meeting, in one home or another, to read and talk together. From discussion he went on to action; and he had the pleasure, during the first year or two, of seeing twenty clubs in successful operation in his home town of Northampton.

James Thornton, considered the most dangerous man in the Missouri penitentiary, has been taken out of solitary confinement to end his days in the hospital. Ten months ago he was discovered as he was about to get out of his cell. He had a lot of dynamite and declared that in a few minutes he would have blown his way through the north wall of the prison. Although death is near he steadfastly refuses to tell where or how he got the dynamite. —Exchange.

Higginsville Advance: A corps of C. & A. surveyors have been at work near here the past week and have surveyed two lines near town, one passes through the northern suburbs and the other about a mile north of town. It is said that the road contemplates shortening its line between Kansas City and Slater.

The State of Missouri and the Farmer.

Statistics just compiled by Geo. H. Ellis, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, show that last year Missouri spent $100,000 to help solve the problem of farming. Next year if bills now before the Legislature become laws the expenditures for this branch of education will be in the neighborhood of $100,000, $75,000 of which was expended through the Missouri Agricultural College at Columbia. The remaining $25,000 was expended through the three State Normal Schools. The work done by the Agricultural College consists of teaching, lecturing to farmers institutes, and experiments. 180 students were taught last year and institutes held in 147 towns. Important experiments were also carried on. Some idea of the importance of these experiments may be obtained from the fact that through them a means of preventing Texas fever in cattle was found. The work done by the Normal Schools is that of teaching. The most important legislation now pending provides for agricultural instruction in high schools.

Higginsville Advance: We listen to hear of a damage suit against the county at any time. The bridge in the timber about three miles east of Higginsville on the Davis and Dover township line is very dangerous. The new bridge lumber has been at the bridge for the past six months and we expect it will rot before it will be used, unless the neighbors will put in the bridge free.

NEWER THINGS OF PAPER.

Table Covers as Well as Napkins—Paper Favors—Women's Hats Also of Paper.

Paper table covers may now be had, as well as paper napkins and doilies. Table coverings have long been made by gluing together crepe paper, which can be bought in long rolls of any color or shade desired, and, like paper printed with border or all-over designs, the borders being festooned or otherwise treated for greater decorative effect, says the New York Sun.

But now there are offered paper table covers of a single piece, designed for outings or picnics or luncheons. They are 42 by 70 inches, and are printed in designs like those to be found on the paper napkins. They are made with designs appropriate to various occasions, as, with violets for a violet luncheon; pink roses for a rose luncheon, and holly for the holiday season. A luncheon set of paper containing a table cover, 12 napkins and 12 doilies, all printed with the same design, can be bought for 25 cents.

There are now made 500 or more cotton favors that are in part or wholly of paper, these favors comprising an almost endless variety of things, and ranging in price from five cents to three dollars apiece. There are also made paper flowers of every known variety for the adornment of the home, and for the decoration of entire interiors, including flowering vines, and that sort of thing.

But the most astonishing among the newer things made of paper are the women's and children's hats, which are produced in great variety, ranging from sun bonnets of paper, made in imitation of gingham, that sell for 25 cents, up to hats of the most elaborate designs that sell for three dollars. Some of these more elaborate hats may have about them some real ribbon, and perhaps tulle, but more of them are made of paper wholly, including flowers, feathers and all, the paper materials used being built upon the hat frame and attached to the hat.

These hats are made in every style and in white and in all sorts of colors and combinations of colors, and in every variety of trimming, hats suited to any and every sort of costume.

PASTOR WHO LOST CHANCE

His Son, However, Succeeded in Extracting Ten Cents from the Contribution Box.

The minister was entertaining a party of friends at dinner after service, when one of them, who was experiencing difficulty in getting change for a large bill, confessed that he had been sorely tempted to make change from the contribution box when it came his way.

The good dominie smiled and said that sometimes the "plate" met with strange adventures. "A friend of mine," he said, "a minister in the south, took his six-year-old son with him to church one Sunday. It was the boy's first experience at the regular church service, and he was all eyes and ears. The passing of the contribution box especially interested him, and when it got to him he handled the contents with great curiosity."

"After service the boy, while talking with his father at the pulpit, said, with a jerk of his head toward the plate, which was lying near:

"How much did you get out of that, pop?"

"Out of what?" said his father.

"Why, out of that box. I got ten cents. How much did you get?"

Double Rainbow.

A characteristic feature of the Victoria falls of the Zambesi is the glorious double rainbow which at every turn and every view of the river follows one, now in the rich prismatic colors of the day, now in the neutral tints of the moonlight. This impresses the native even more than it does the civilized traveler, for his name for the falls, Dr. Livingstone, their discoverer, tells us, is Seongo or Chongwe, meaning the birthplace of the rainbow. For here they believed "all the rainbows of the world must come to play in the sunlight, before they follow the thunderstorms across the land to bless the rain-chilled beasts and birds." It is a pity that the native name should not have been retained.—Youth's Companion.

GEM WORTH $125,000,000

Calculators Set to Work and Find That Diamond's Value Is One-Eighth Billion.

The discovery at Elandsfontein, near Pretoria, of a diamond which is reputed to be three times greater than the largest stone previously found, has set the calculators at work, with amusing results. One of these, says the New York Sun, who bases his calculations on the estimated value of the famous Regent or Pitt diamond, figures that the new gem, even if two-thirds of its bulk is lost in setting, ought to be worth $25,574,085. This is the most daring of all computations, most of which vary between a half million and three million sterling, with one of £15,000,000.

Nothing beyond the bare report of the discovery of the stone is yet known and later information may reduce this marvel to dimensions which can more easily be grasped. There is no present reason, however, to doubt that it greatly exceeds the Excelsior stone of 970 carats uncut, which was found at Jagersfontein, and was the largest hitherto found in South Africa. This was cut into nine large gems in December, 1904, by Tiffany, and doubtless the new stone will also be divided.

Whatever the value of the new discovery, the shareholders of the Premier mine, in which it was found, have every reason to congratulate themselves. The market valuation of the shares increased the other day by nearly a million pounds sterling. The boom in the shares was largely the result of the assumption that where one gem of 3,032 carats is found others as big or even bigger may be located. The discovery cannot, however, be regarded as a net gain to the company, because under the present diamond law the government is entitled to six-tenths of all the net profit.

There is something very much like a fairy tale in the history of the Premier mine, which is located on a farm whose Boer owner sold it two years ago for £55,000. The nominal capital of the Premier company is £80,000. It earned last year £667,738, and the market value of the shares is now in the neighborhood of £10,000,000. The advance is generally understood to have been caused by heavy buying by the De Beers company, with the object of obtaining the control of the company and maintaining its monopoly in the diamond field.

URIU NOTED FOR HIS PLUCK

Japanese Admiral While at Annapolis Lived Up to Traditions of the Institution.

When Admiral Uriu, one of the well-known officers for the Japanese navy, was a lad, he received his training at the United States naval academy at Annapolis, says Cassell's. At the beginning of his time there he was subjected to some severe practical joking, and gained admiration from the plucky fashion in which he stood it. Later on, he helped to play similar pranks upon others, and always insisted upon living up fully to Annapolis traditions.

One day young Uriu was busily engaged in "dressing down" George Ferguson, who afterwards became an assistant engineer at the Brooklyn bridge. Ferguson was then about twice the Jap's size, but his superior stature did not in the least save him.

"What's your name?" demanded Uriu, with an air and a voice that could not be denied.

"Ferguson, sir," was the reply.

"Spell it," said Uriu.

"F-e-r-g-u-s-o-n, sir," said the other.

"Spell it over again, and remember that you are addressing your superior," was Uriu's next demand.

"F, sir; e, sir; r, sir; g, sir; u, sir; s, sir; o, sir; n, sir. Ferguson, sir," was then the reply, and it was accepted.
